[K3 Visit to the IFEC FinEd Hub]

The red envelopes (lucky money) children receive after the Lunar New Year provide a perfect opportunity for financial education! To help children learn how to manage and utilize this "small fortune," we arranged a visit to the " IFEC FinEd Hub." Through playful learning, children developed sound money concepts.

In the "Financial Farm" activity, children became little farmers, cultivating crops and learning to allocate money—shopping, donating, and saving—experiencing the consequences of sound financial decisions. In the "Dream Graffiti" area, children could depict their dreams, connecting financial management with their aspirations and understanding the relationship between financial planning and life goals.

This visit not only made red envelope money a starting point for education but also allowed children to gradually master financial skills through interaction and laughter, laying a solid foundation for future financial health.

Preschool Sayings:

"I will work hard to water and fertilize the plants so I can get vegetables and earn money."

"I can donate the money to others."

"I want to buy a duckling as a reward for myself."

"I will remember that money can be used to save, spend, and share."

Learning Tips:

At home, parents can prepare three piggy banks: "Savings," "Spending," and "Sharing," to help children learn to allocate money. Setting small goals or simulating shopping scenarios, along with parent-child discussions, can help establish correct money concepts. Red envelope money is not just a festive joy, but also the first step in children's financial learning.
